Mayor's Relief Fund

Ninety minutes with the old time music masters is promised the people of New Castle who attend the concert of the New Castle Civic Orchestra in the Cathedral Sunday afternoon, January 17, at 2:30 o'clock. For a little while they can forget the depression and the lack of snow and hear a concert by a group of able musicians, plus the advantage of aiding the Mayor's Relief Committee by a voluntary collection.

The New Castle Civic Orchestra is not just a group of ordinary musicians banded together for a single performance. It is an orchestra composed of talented musicians, men who live in New Castle and who are accomplished with their particular instrument. Long weeks of rehearsal have been necessary to bring the orchestra to its present standard of collective musicianship, and while this is the first public appearance of the orchestra, you may depend that it is not the last.

A civic orchestra has long been the need of New Castle musically. Time was when Edward P. Kurtz had an orchestra here that ranked with the best. There never should be a time when New Castle did not have its own orchestra, and believing this, the musicians have banded themselves together for the purpose of civic endeavor.

Back of the concert, meritorious as it will be, is an additional good. A silver offering will be taken and the entire proceeds turned over to the (Continued On Page Two)

PA NEW OBSERVES

From what Pa New learns, this "Mayor" salutation that Julius Markley of the Southside gets isn't so very new to him. It seems as if a portion of his friends is "Mr. Mayor" to a host of his friends.

There has evidently been considerable rainfall in the upper section of the Shenango River valley. During the past twenty-four hours, the stream has risen over three feet, and was still going up this morning. This is a little out of the ordinary.

A lot of intrepid golfers have been getting in some good "hick," and probably a lot of bad ones, during the week. Quite a few played on the Municipal course during the week. There probably would have been more had not the memberships expired the last of December.

Larger quarters are certainly needed for the South Side branch of the New Castle free public library. The little branch, located on South Mill street in a small second story room, has a tremendous circulation and (Continued On Page Two)

POLICE DEPARTMENT TO BE REORGANIZED

Mayor Charles B. Mayne, by virtue of his office of superintendent of police, today stated he would reorganize the department of police sometime during the next four or six weeks. The reorganization, the mayor declared, will be for the purpose of giving the people the best possible police service.

One of the moves the mayor has already decided upon is that the day force will be decreased and the night force increased.

The mayor said that when he assumed control of the department he said there would be no immediate changes.

Through Reduction Plan

(International News Service)
CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—The ball room of Chicago's Palmer House was the setting today for a history-making conference between capital and labor.

Beneath glittering crystal chandeliers, facing each other across a long linen-covered table, railway executives and Union leaders bargained and bartered in a conference to settle their differences and arrive at an amicable agreement.

Demand Wage Cut
Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio and chairman of the President's committee, continued his demand for a voluntary ten per cent wage cut for a year.

D. B. Robertson, spokesman for the Unions and president of the Brotherhood Railway Firemen and Engineers, repeated the plea of labor for better working conditions, a six-hour working day wherever applicable, stabilization of employment, and a nation-wide placement bureau.

A spirit of conciliation prevailed and it was expected a compromise will be reached.

World Save Millions
It was estimated the railroads would save $250,000,000 through the ten percent wage cut.

At Bryn Mawr

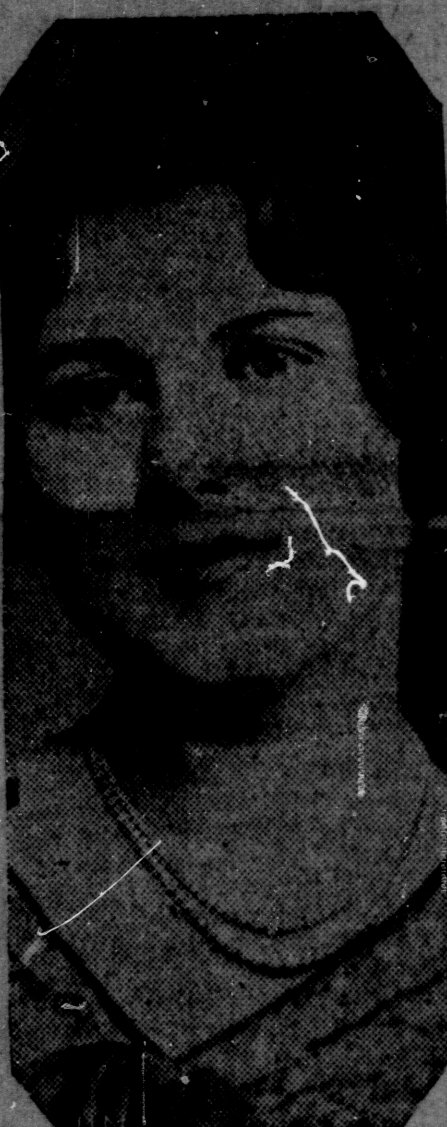

(International News Service)
PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16.—Elliott Roosevelt and Miss Elizabeth Donner were married at half past twelve today in the church of the Redeemer, Bryn Mawr. Four thousand guests, high in the social and political life of the nation, witnessed the wedding.

Miss Donner is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Donner of Villanova, while Roosevelt is the son of Gov. and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York. The Empire State executive, his wife and mother arrived here last night to attend the ceremony. They are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania, who also are on the guest list of the betrothed couple.

They were honor guests last night at a dinner given by the bride-to-be while younger members of the Roosevelt and Donner families and their immediate friends attended a dinner dance given for the bride party by who was a bridesmaid.

The wedding is the most notable one of the winter season in main line society circles. It took on a national importance by the presence of so many prominent guests. Among them besides the governors of New York and Pennsylvania are: Mayor James A. Walker, and Mrs. Walker of New York City and James A. Farley, Democratic state chairman of New York.

Sanity Test For Man Who Admits He Killed Baby

Ohio Grand Jury Fails To Indict Man Who Says Killing Was "Act Of Mercy"

(International News Service)
MILLERSBURG, O., Jan. 16.—On the recommendation of the grand jury which failed to return an indictment, Holmes county officials today prepared to hold a sanity test for a man who admitted he killed his two-year-old son because the baby suffered from an incurable brain disorder.

Indicating in its report it doubted the mental condition of the father, the grand jury of 15 men returned the recommendation and no bill after a thorough investigation into the purported confession.

Will Be Examined
A sanity board will probably be appointed by the court Monday and if Stenhouse is found to be mentally unbalanced, it was said, he will be incarcerated in a hospital for the insane.

Without arousing the suspicions of the family physician or anyone in the village of Killbuck, where Stenhouse resided with his wife and four children, the man was said to have revealed in his confession to Sheriff James A. Stevens that he chloroformed the baby, David Oscar, "to end his suffering and save his mother's life."

Stanley Trever, director of streets, said that employees of the department today were at work repairing depressions on streets and avenues of the East Side.

Worst Flood In History Of
Region—100,000 Acres
Of Land Inundated

(International News Service)
MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 16.—A vast section of the Mississippi delta region was swept by surging flood waters today, endangering the lives of thousands of persons.

Fresh breaks in levees sent additional avalanches of water over the countryside as the "Father of Waters" and many of his tributaries continued to rise.

Newest break was in the Patterson Bayou levee, eight miles south of Charleston, Miss., where a wall of water 15 feet high hurtled through a giant gap in the dam.

Relief Is Rushed
Having already inundated some 100,000 acres, the deluge was characterized by pioneer residents as the worst in the history of the region. A new levee break was expected today. (Continued On Page Two)

Northern England Shaken By Quake

Five Violent Earth Tremors

Rock Wide Area

(International News Service)
MANCHESTER, Eng., Jan. 16.—Five violent earth tremors, each of several seconds duration, were felt over a wide area of northern England today. Thousands of persons were awakened from their sleep, but only minor damage was reported.

Father Rowlands of Stonyhurst College observatory said the shocks were not recorded on the institution's seismograph. He attributed them to surface subsidence in coal mines in the region.

Every Citizen Has Personal Obligation In Hospital Campaign

Louis B. Round, vice president and general manager of the Pennsylvania Power company can hardly be charged with any lack of civic interest in his home town. President of the Rotary Club, one of the members of the Municipal Golf Committee, councilman for the Lawrence County Boy Scouts, chairman of the Civilian Sponsor Committee for Troop F, these and other pieces of work speak for themselves. Hence he is in a position to discuss the "face hospitalization" as a community.

Touching upon the Jameson Memorial hospital campaign today, Mr. Round said:

"As a citizen I have certain responsibilities which I cannot dodge. Some of them legal in their nature, others of them moral and civic. I must pay taxes, serve on juries, obey the laws. These are mandatory. Among the moral responsibilities can be listed supporting a church, helping in civic endeavors, aiding the needy and to all of these can be added a duty which I owe myself and my neighbor, that of seeing that we have competent hospitalization."

"I might never need a policeman to protect me or my property but if I did I would want to know he was where I could get him. I might never need a hospital but I want to know that there is one near if I do. Hence it devolves upon me, as a citizen, to lend my aid in seeing that the Jameson Memorial hospital is enabled to continue. If it does it may mean the difference between life and death for me or my family. If it closes, you and I might open."

Mob Hysteria Is Open And Menacing Today As Vir-

Killer

(International News Service)
MIDDLEBURG, Va., Jan. 16.—Mob hysteria, which has flowed intermittently through the wealthy social and hunting colony here since the bookish murder of pretty Mrs. Spencer Isley and her maid, Mrs. Anne Buckner, Wednesday, was open and menacing today.

While police of Loudoun county, the District of Columbia and other points initiated a nation-wide search for George Crawford, Negro ex-convict suspected of the murders, feeling flared here against the Negro settlement in which he lived, known as "Windy City."

A dozen or more whites circulated through the negro community. The unspoken feeling was:

"Let's clean up Windy City."

Two meetings of citizens were held, one of the wealthy, sporting element maintaining stables and estates about here, the other made up of those who have lived here for years. There was no set program, the meetings were rather spontaneous. People merely met and discussed the two gruesome murders. Another meeting was set for Monday, however, at which steps will be taken to provide the community with a municipal policeman.

Officials continued their search for Crawford and an unidentified accomplice, but as yet have been able to report no progress of any importance.

Japan Declares Open Door Policy To Be Maintained

Makes Reply To Recent American Note Concerning Manchuria

SAYS SITUATION IN CHINA IS CHANGED

Declares Readiness To Carry Out Obligations Of Kellogg Pact

By JAMES R. YOUNG
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

TOKYO, Jan. 16.—Japan today replied to the American note on Manchuria, declaring she would do all in her power to maintain the "open door" policy in China and stating she entertained no territorial ambitions in Manchuria.

She added, however, that a changed situation in China has necessitated a new conception of how to carry out the "open door" policy, one different than that assumed with the signing of the Nine-Power treaty in Washington.

In regard to the references to the Kellogg Pact and the Nine-Power treaty made in American Secretary of State Stimson's formal protest, the statement declared the United States may rely upon Japan to fulfill her obligations under these pacts insofar as the legality of the treaty rights of the United States is concerned.

The note said Japan regarded as a cardinal feature of Far East policy maintenance of the "open door" policy in China, and regretted that present unsettled conditions there prevented its effectiveness.

It added, in regard to this, that treaties relating to China must be applied with due regard to state affairs prevailing there, and that when the Washington treaty (Nine-Power Pact) was signed the contracting parties did not contemplate the present distracted state of China.

The United States Government has been alive to the exigencies of Far East questions on more than one occasion, the note concluded, and Japan felt assured that at the present juncture, when her national policy is involved, the United States would entertain a friendly spirit.

Displays Uneasiness
In the past few days the government-controlled Soviet press has been displaying uneasiness over reports that Japanese troops were threatening an advance against Harbin, center of Russian influence in northern Manchuria.

Though Tokyo has specifically denied intimations from Nipponese sources that Japan was preparing to back a new "independent" regime at Harbin that would be amenable to Japanese suggestions.

The Soviet request for a non-aggression pact undoubtedly was made to sound out the Japanese position and attempt to pin Japan down to a definite pledge not to violate the Russo-Japanese gentlemen's agreement respecting zones of influence in Manchuria. Its rejection, Tokyo dispatches hint, was dictated by militarists who have steadily urged an expansionist policy in Manchuria regardless of the chances of conflict with Russia.

Two meetings of citizens were held, one of the wealthy, sporting element maintaining stables and estates about here, the other made up of those who have lived here for years. There was no set program, the meetings were rather spontaneous. People merely met and discussed the two gruesome murders. Kiwanis' Birthday Coming Next Week

City's Club Joins Wednesday In Nation-Wide Event; Marks 17th Year

Next Wednesday's luncheon of the New Castle Kiwanis club will bring a program celebrating the 17th anniversary of the founding of that world-wide service organization which since early in its life has upheld the motto, "We Build".

It is planned to have the history of Kiwanis International traced by a speaker, showing that its steady growth can be attributed to the community service ideals its member-clubs have lived up to.

Kiwanis first was founded for a selfish-gain objective, an ideal far removed from the service principle its Birmingham convention voted to adopt. Its early objectives were based upon those of an older, selfish group that straggled service only lightly.

New Castle's club is only following a nation-wide plan in fittingly celebrating this significant anniversary that comes next week.

Kiwanis was first originated in Detroit.

Marshall Remands Lewis To Jail For Additional Hearing

Wife Tells How Hubby Hit Her On Head With Hammer; Others Testify

There was plenty of conflicting testimony, humor and pathos in Alderman W. E. Marshall's tiny courtroom yesterday afternoon, when an aggregation of Southsiders filed the office to testify in the case of the commonwealth and Mrs. Dave Lewis against Dave Lewis, charged with felonious assault and battery.

After eight witnesses had given conflicting testimony and Mrs. Lewis of 1014 South Jefferson St. had told how on January 5 her husband had struck her over the head with a hammer, Alderman Marshall remanded Lewis to jail in lieu of $500. The hearing was to be continued Monday when the prosecution will bring another witness, one Mike Paul, who is a neighbor of the Lewises.

Mrs. Lewis was recently released from the New Castle hospital where she had been confined eight days suffering from several cuts on the head said to have been inflicted by her husband. Lewis was arrested by Constable Ellison after he had been released by city police, and was held in jail for the hearing on the charge sworn before Marshall by Mrs. Lewis.

Witnesses at yesterday's hearing were Mrs. Lewis, Curley Williams, 1106 Scioto street; John George who picked the woman up from the street where she had been found after her alleged altercation with her husband; Officers Bud Fleeger, H. E. Richard; James (Buster) Wilson, Mrs. Catherine Williams and Merle (Drybones) Tyler.

PUBLIC CONCERT TO BE PRESENTED AT CATHEDRAL

the mayor's relief committee. The funds of the committee are low at the present time and the need is large. Hence, not only will those present Sunday hear a real concert but they will be enabled to aid a most worthy cause if they see fit so to do.

Mayor Charles B. Mayne has designated Sunday as "Living Music Day" and has urged every citizen to attend the concert who can possibly do so. A capacity house at the Cathedral Sunday afternoon will not only help the mayor's relief committee out of a hole, but will show the musicians of the New Castle Civic Orchestra that the citizens appreciate their efforts.

Vocal Soloists

In addition to the orchestral numbers there will be two vocal soloists, Richard E. Johns and George Anthony. Both of them are too well known to need any detailed account of their ability. Mr. Johns is a baritone soloist and Mr. Anthony a tenor. Any program containing their names is enhanced, and with them will be Thomas Webber, organist, who will be heard in a solo number on the Greater Memorial organ.

The concert opens at 2:30 in the Cathedral on Lincoln avenue. The program insures an afternoon of genuine delight. Listed among the numbers are the works of world-famous masters, and to miss this concert will be to miss a real artistic treat. The orchestra is directed by Julius V. Syphar. George E. Richardson is concertmaster and C. Leroy Shira is the manager.

Program

The program for Sunday's concert follows: Peter Tschalkowsky Festival Overture. E. Lassen This wonderful overture is of modern class, based on an old folk song, "How Can I Leave Thee." Maybe you have heard your mother sing it and, as all of us seem to be reaching out for the simpler things of life, we go back to this simple folk song for a theme for an overture. Listen carefully and you will hear it woven like a thread through this beautiful number. Then at the finale the brasses take it up and announce to you that they are supreme and take it away from the rest of the orchestra much to the dismay of the string who run the entire length of the scale looking for it, never to find it again.

(a) Adagio Lamentoso. Peter Tschalkowsky This is the slow movement of the famous Symphony Pathétique in B minor by Tschalkowsky. This is the slow movement, solemn, and at times impassioned, consisting of two contrasting themes. These are worked up with great dramatic power rising at times to the full strength of the orchestra and at last dying away in a hushed pianissimo. This Russian among the Russians pours out his soul in anguish for the woes and sorrows of his oppressed people. You will enjoy this number more if you can imagine this man sobbing, tearing at his heart in his grief. This number was first played in October, 1893, in St. Petersburg, and three weeks later Tschalkowsky died of the cholera.

(b) Polka National Dance. X. Scharwenka The title tells the whole story. Written just after the Civil War originally as a piano number, later transcribed for the orchestra. A grand mazurka of this period. Organ Solo. Thomas H. Webber Rhapsodie Catalane, Bonnet Joseph Bonnet, the famous French organist, has taken an old Spanish carol and composed this Rhapsodie on the simple theme. The short fugue section will be played by the Moeller Reproducing Player—this number was recorded by Mr. Webber—and the roll is used for this section.

Song of the Flame. George Gershwin Just a selection of numbers from the operetta by George Gershwin, one of the best of the present popular writers. He has almost elevated jazz music from the cellar to the parlor. Many of the large orchestras play his "Rhapsody in Blue" and feature it.

(c) Ye Who Have Yearned Alone. Richard E. Johns (d) River Stay Way From My Door. Evolution of Dixie. M. L. Lake A fantasia depicting the gradual evolution of "Dixie," slowly through "The Creation," "Dance Aborigine," and "The Minuet." The melody is developed until there emerges the immortal "Dixie," then in turn becomes a waltz, then ragtime, and at last Grand Opera. This number was first played not so long ago by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Organ Solo. Thos. H. Webber Schery's Duet. Charming organ music by Gaston M. Dethier, who for a number of years has been head of the organ department of the Institute of Musical Art in New York City.

(a) Celebrated Minuet. L. Boccherini This is really a request number, just a beautiful old minuet written about 1775 and in the style of that period. (b) Monastery Garden. Albert V. Ketelbey Just a nice tone picture by the English writer, Ketelbey, who has written a lot of beautiful numbers of this sort. You hear this a great deal on the radio and we hope you will like it here too.

Prelude and Siciliana (from the opera Cavalleria Rusticana)..... Incidental Vocal Solo by George Anthony Just a group of numbers from the opera which is almost too well known for any comment.

Solo. George Anthony "Berceuse," from "Jocelyn," B. Godard. Community Sing Abide With Me. William Hervey Monk Audience, Organ and Orchestra (Words on back of the program) Pomp and Circumstance. Edward Elgar The famous march used at the coronation of King Edward VII. Elgar was knighted by the king for this effort.

he would be in a position to make for the best possible police service. "In fact," the mayor declared, "I intend to take of certain men from the day force and enlarge the night force."

The police appropriation for 1932 is less than 1931, due to salaries for two men having not been appropriated and a 10 per cent reduction. The mayor told council some time ago the department could operate without filling the two vacancies.

He also intimated at that time the position of captain of traffic would be abandoned.

According to Mayor Mayne, he informed J. Ed Elder to this effect some time ago, but for the present had ordered him to continue to fulfill the duties of a captain of traffic at a patrolman's wage.

THE UNJUST BURDEN ON REAL ESTATE

NEW JERSEY has added its voice to the general complaint over the unjust tax burdens that have been placed on real estate, and particular emphasis is laid on the hardships which this policy inflicts on home owners. Taxation, like death, will be with us always, and at this time most of the headlines deal with movements for taxes of one kind or another in city, state and nation. That additional revenue must be raised goes without saying. The question must be approached in a common-sense fashion. It is the easiest thing in the world to demand lavish appropriations from congress and other bodies, but it is folly to imagine that the money can be paid out before it is paid in. The real problem is to make certain that the levies are fair and equitable and to be sure that one class is not benefiting at the expense of the others.

There seems to be pretty general agreement by this time that real estate has been bearing more than its share of the load. Harry T. Taylor, the new president of the New Jersey Association of Real Estate Boards, in his inaugural address in Trenton, declared that real estate was now carrying 80 per cent of the entire burden of taxation, and that as a consequence ownership of this form of property was becoming unbearable.

It is proposed to have introduced in the legislature a measure limiting the tax imposed on real estate to 50 per cent of the total cost of government. It seems like a reasonable proposal, and it certainly does not sound like asking special favor.

It is announced that the association will shortly call a conference of men representing building and loan organizations, bankers' and taxpayers' committees, chambers of commerce, members of the bar and other groups to consider this grave problem, with the hope of achieving reduction in realty's share of taxation.

Time and brains will be required to adjust the matter equitably. It must be considered calmly and in a spirit of fairness. But surely the time has passed when each additional increase in the cost of government is to be provided for by adding to the taxes of good citizens who are making a decent effort to own the homes in which they live.

THE AUTOMOBILE OF 1932

In 1931 about 2,450,000 motor vehicles of all types were produced—54 per cent less than the record of 1929—and the number of registrations, for the first time in automobile history, not only failed to show an increase but actually declined by about 450,000. Far from being disheartened by these figures, the industry views the coming selling season, ushered in, as usual, by the New York Automobile Show, with a cheerfulness that is inspired by more than Pollyanna logic. Cars wear out. Fully 6,000,000 have nearly reached the limit of economic service. Indeed, the average car is older than at any time since the World War. Obsolescence is to be inferred not only from the known useful life of engines and transmissions but from the fact that, despite the decline in sales and registrations, 500,000,000 more gallons of gasoline were consumed in 1931 than in 1930. We drove our cars and trucks so hard in 1931 that each covered 300 miles more, on the average, than in 1930.

With a potential market for 6,000,000 cars in sight and a conviction that at least a third of that number can be sold, it might be supposed that the automobile makers would incur no heavy expense in improving their established models. The Automobile Show testifies to the contrary. Never were more engineering refinements introduced, and never were good cars so cheap.

To meet the growing demand for speed, engines of higher power have been introduced. Yet the cars of today are safer at seventy miles an hour than were those of a decade ago at forty. More powerful engines require more rigid mountings. So we find new types of chassis, transversely very stiff. More complex than ever, the automobile of 1932 is more easily controlled than was the ten-horsepower contraption of 1905. The clutch moves in and out without aid from the foot. Shock absorbers adjust themselves to varying loads, speeds and roads. If the engine stalls, the starter leaps into action of its own accord—a boom in heavy street traffic. Gears move into position silently and with the expenditure of little effort. Nearly all the old manual work of running a car has been reduced to the pushing of a button or pedal and the twisting of a steering wheel.

It may be doubted if even engineers fully appreciate the technical value of their achievement in the car of 1932. Here is a mechanism which is necessarily intricate, which has the speed of an express train on the open road, which is as sensitive to heat as a baby, and which can be controlled by a 15-year-old girl. Complete automaticity cannot be far off. Even as it is, mechanical knowledge is no longer necessary to run a car.—The New York Times.

DEMOCRATIC RESPONSIBILITY

After the Democratic majority in the house gets through playing party politics and maneuvering to embarrass the administration, congress can tackle the problem which more than any other in this session affects the whole people and the entire business structure. It is the problem of the federal deficit and the tax program which must be drafted to get the federal budget out of the red.

The treasury deficit at the end of the first half of the current fiscal year was $1,385,000,000. Responsible for getting the government in that hole were increased expenditures and diminishing revenues, including a $500,000,000 drop in income tax receipts.

Congress' job is to find somewhere, somehow, additional revenue totaling not less than $900,000,000 before next June. And tax legislation must originate in the house. Therefore responsibility for the tax program rests with the Democratic majority in that body.

It is essential to business and important to every taxpayer that congress act at once in this matter but they expect the first. What hope is there for a speedy decision when the Democrats cannot even agree among themselves?

There is need for a vigorous and courageous leadership in the lower branch of congress to force through an adequate tax program, scientifically arrived at, which recognizes the nation's cash requirements and the ability of the people and business to pay rather than the political stratagems of congressmen.

Congress fiddles but no music makes.

The least those foreign debtors could do is send Uncle Sam a rubber check.

Jimmy Knew How to Live
And How to Laugh
And How to Die

By MARSHAL MASLIN

I knew a printer who wanted to be a lawyer.

He was a good printer, but he wanted to be a good lawyer.

It was terribly hard work to be on his feet all day long, and then to spend three or four hours every night studying law. But Jimmy kept at it, year in and year out.

Though it told heavily on his health, he kept at it. And finally he thought he was ready for the bar examinations. He was worried, though he felt fairly secure.

He took them, and he failed.

Jimmy was disappointed, but he laughed and told me he'd try again. He worked, he studied, and again he was ready for the examinations. But this time he fell sick, got the flu, just at examination time. So, he lost another chance.

His smile wasn't so ready this time. He was a little discouraged. But he laughed and he kept his courage up. And he told me that he'd surely pass those examinations the next time—and then he'd be a lawyer. More than 40 years old, he'd start out, leave a craft for a profession, and make his dreams come true.

But he never did.

Jimmy died. His heart was bad, though that was a secret known only to Jimmy. And one morning, here in the office, we were told that Jimmy had died the night before, all by himself, without crying for help, without a whimper.

It was hard to make that. We were sorry for Jimmy, we were even sorry for ourselves. We all agreed that Jimmy was "a great little fellow."

He was all Irish, and he had a heart as big as himself. He'd say to me after one of his disappointments, "Well, my old grandmother used to say that never a door shuts but another one opens."

And what I remember most about Jimmy was that fine courage of his. He was working and dreaming of tomorrow, but he wasn't neglecting today.

He was planning for the years when he'd have an office and a big shelf of books, and he'd be Attorney Jimmy, pleading before juries and judges, but he wasn't forgetting his friends while he planned. He was hoping, but he was LIVING while he hoped.

And, though he never did do all that he hoped for himself, he did more than he knew for his friends. That's why there's never a month passes that I don't get to thinking sort of wistfully and sort of gratefully of Jimmy and that rich Irish heart of the man.

PETER B. KYNE
Noted Author of Adventure Stories and Novels.

Released by Central Press Association

Question: What started you on the road which led you to success as a novelist?

Answer: I used to read other people's work, and it didn't seem that it would be difficult for me to do. As a boy I could always take refuge in a world of fancy. When I was 21 I attempted writing to while away evenings, because I had no money to spend for any sort of entertainment, even for books. I got in the habit of looking at life as a story. Life's comedy and drama always appealed to me. Finally I began to realize that fiction writing was largely the art of depicting life as the majority of people would like to live it if they had the ordering of their own lives. So I began turning out stories that sold. And now I am a hopeless addict.

The greatest leveller of persons and the only fruitful source of courage, heroism and self-sacrifice is Danger.

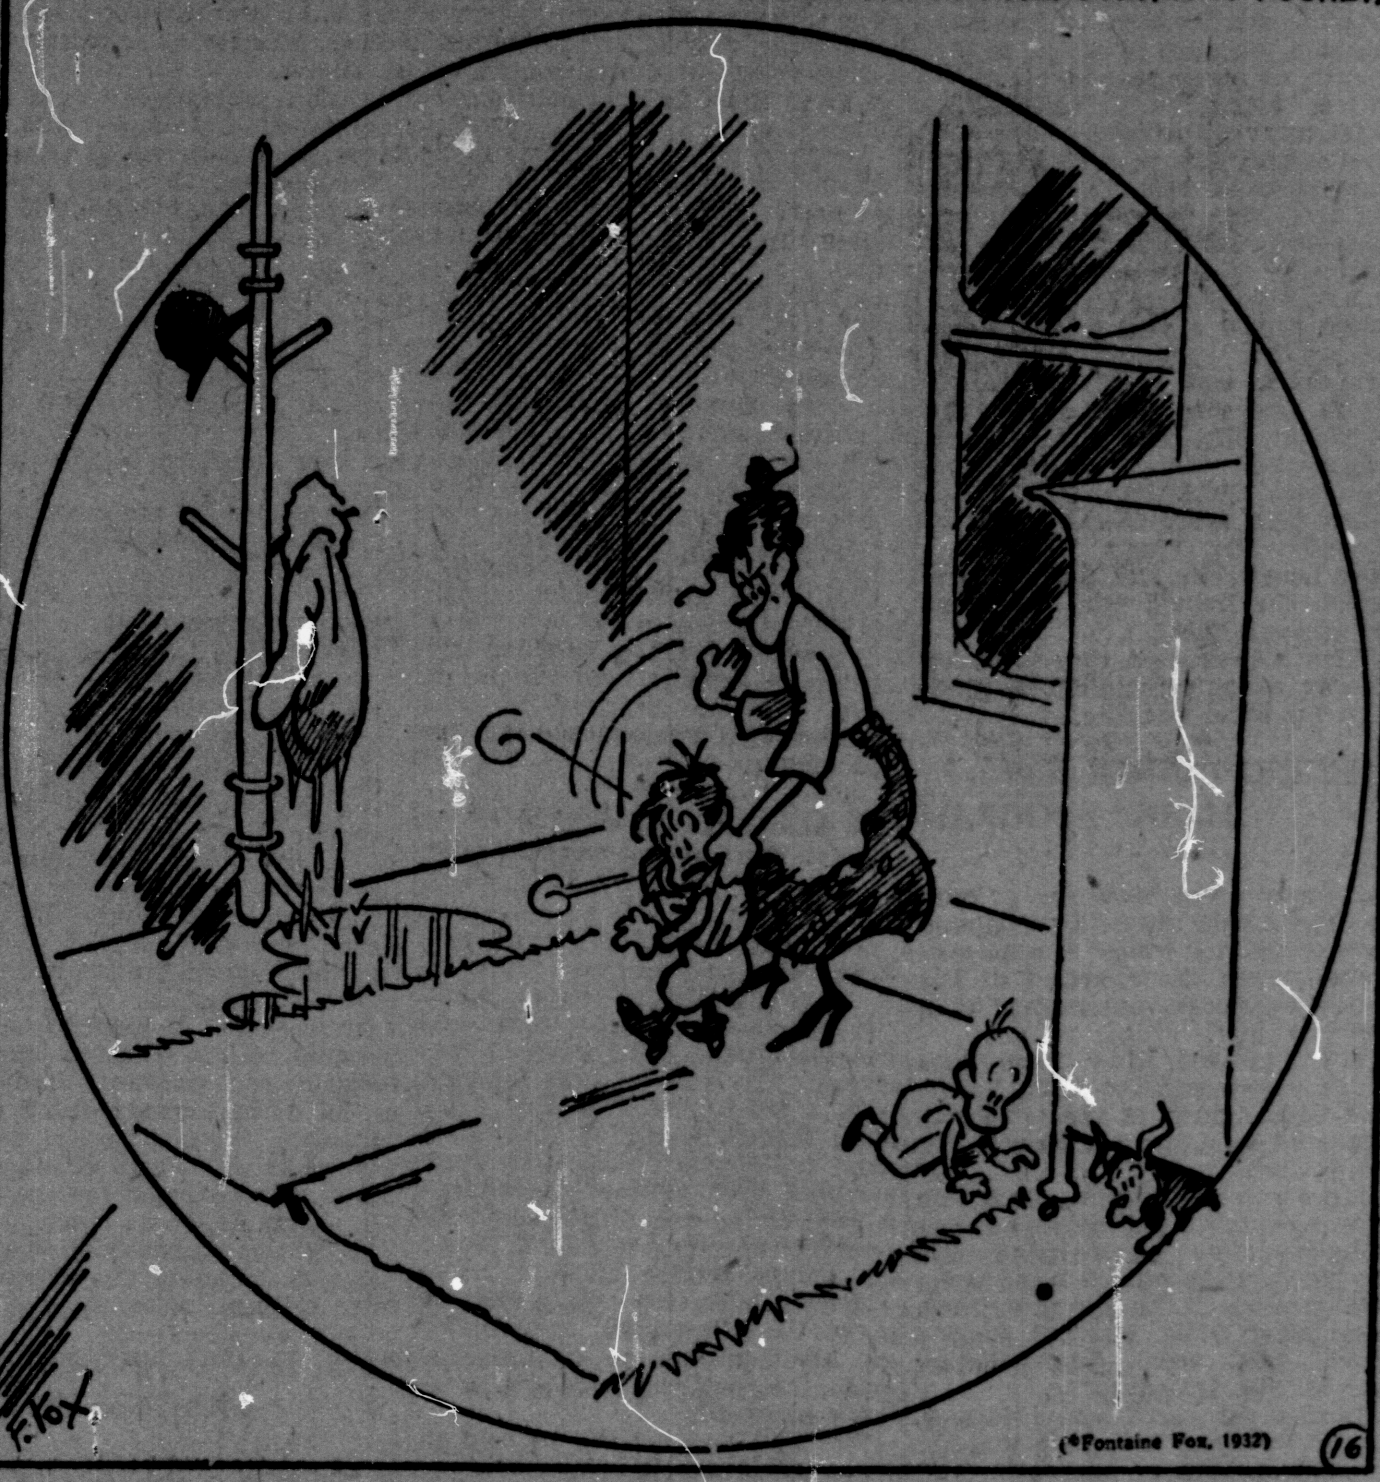

When the ship is sinking the individual who stands at the davits paying out the ropes is no longer just a "person" to Mr. Jones—he is a potential savior. He's "in the same boat" with the others, and the heart and brain of that man can jump to the front page hero position as quickly, if not quicker, than the millionaire in the most expensive cabin on the ship.

As soon as danger approaches, a spirit of brotherhood, the like of which is created in no other way, immediately comes to life. Suddenly the little conventions of life cease to be important. All of our actions become frank and open. It is a time when the "real" men and women become obvious.

New Theory In Philanthropy Is Credited To Rosenwald

Death Of Chicago Business Leader and Benefactor Of The Needy Brings Public Tributes To His Remarkable Use Of Wealth

Death of Julius Rosenwald, Chicago business leader and great philanthropist, arouses special interest in his unique theory that the "dead hand" should be banished from the world of philanthropy, and that in gifts to education and charity, both principal and interest should be spent within less than a lifetime. His benefactions are estimated at more than $50,000,000 "distributed" as the CHICAGO DAILY NEWS says "with infinite care."

Quoting Mr. Rosenwald as having stated that "charity is the one pleasure that never wears out," the CLEVELAND NEWS pays the tribute that he "practiced what he preached." That paper says of his death that it means the passing of "one of the greatest philanthropists of modern times," who "did much to impress upon the world the satisfaction of the stewardship of great riches." The MIAMI DAILY NEWS attests that "he built lasting monuments to himself in the hearts of millions of less fortunate people, and revealed the stature of a true nobleman in universal human sympathy."

"He was a man among men, this merchant prince who was also the prince of philanthropists," says the HOUSTON CHRONICLE, while the CINCINNATI TIMES-STAR sees him as "typical of America's business genius at its best." The SIOUX FALLS DAILY ARGUS LEADER is impressed by the fact that "so tentative was his charitable work that he was better known as a philanthropist than as the head of a business," and that "his ideals were such that he made his millions a helpful factor in American life." The OKLAHOMA CITY OKLAHOMAN feels that "this great vacancy now created in the world of philanthropy will remain a vacancy for many years."

"His gifts went far and wide, but particularly to the drearier places and the less fortunate people of his own and other lands," observes the ATLANTA JOURNAL, with the conclusion that "wherever great-heartedness and high-mindedness are revered, his memory will be cherished."

"The chief pleasure he derived from a long and busy life," states the FORT WAYNE NEWS-SENTINEL, "is to be found in the Julius Rosenwald Foundation for the 'well-being of mankind.' Out of this fund of $35,000,000 went vast sums for the help of the American Negro, in whom Rosenwald had been interested for more than a score of years; and also large contributions to funds for the construction of Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. buildings. Julius Rosenwald will be recorded, like Abner Ben-Adhem, high in the lists of those who loved their fellow-men. An example of energy, independence, constructive organization—he will be known even more immortal as one who shared his rewards generously with the less fortunate."

Finding special interest in the provision that Mr. Rosenwald's endowments "must be fully spent 25 years after his death," the ROANOK TIMES adds that "it is gratifying to note that his ideals will be carried on and his work perpetuated by his children, who met a short time before his death and informed the Rosenwald Family Association."

The COLUMBIA (S. C.) STATE pays the tribute that he left his name to be graven on human hearts alone," and declares further: "In Julius Rosenwald there was a greatness of heart, a humanity that uplifts him for all time. One of the remarkable things about this man, particularly in this era of self-exaltation, was the modesty and even shyness of his spirit. He helped tens of thousands of persons, that needed balm or spiritual help, but he would allow none of these to exalt him. He endowed libraries and schools, but always insisted that these were not to figure as monuments to their creator or endower."

"Such men do not appear in every community or in every generation," attests the CHICAGO DAILY NEWS, advising that "this community and this generation have been fortunate in the possession of Julius Rosenwald." That paper also comments: "Few men of wealth have given as much personal attention to their philanthropies as did Mr. Rosenwald. In recent years he engaged a staff of specialists to handle his philanthropic foundation—the Julius Rosenwald fund, whose assets at one time amounted to $34,440,000—but he kept in close touch with their work till within a short time of his death. Simultaneously he disbursed large sums from his personal fortune. Wealth to Mr. Rosenwald was a sacred trust which he administered as a conscientious steward. He communicated that attitude to some of his wealthy friends, and undoubtedly influenced the distribution of many millions other than his own."

"He put all his sound business judgment and unusual acumen into his philanthropic undertakings," in the opinion of the LEXINGTON LEADER, which offers the judgment: "He was a man gifted with a great heart, a noble spirit of humanitarianism, free from narrow prejudices and from intolerance in any shape, and kind and generous to a fault in every relationship of life."

"Based upon the experiences of the past and the known uncertainties of the future," says the APPLETON POST-CRESCENT, "he formulated the principle that 'no money should be given except upon the condition that it be spent within a relatively short time. He reasoned that if we took care of our generation and the men of means provided liberally, accomplishing the two-fold object of doing good to others and preventing the stagnation of great funds, the next generation would be more able to do likewise. He showed how the change in situations makes impossible excepting in a ludicrous manner some of the fine bequests of a perpetual nature that looked sane when originated."

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

HOW IT WORKS.

In the little world of an English factory, where a number of girls had the job of threading needles, an answer has been found to the eternal question, "What does man seek most in life—great wealth or sufficient leisure?"

The girls in this plant averaged to thread ninety-six dozen needles a day, all receiving an equal wage, regardless of how many were threaded. It was felt that piecework would be a more equitable basis on which to work; the arrangement was tried, and the average fell to seventy-five dozen per day.

Then a new basis was thought of: the rate of pay was returned to a flat basis, and the announcement made that after each girl had threaded one hundred dozen (four more than accomplished on the original basis and twenty-five more than on piecework) she could go home. All of the girls completed their tasks and had left by 2:30 in the afternoon.

Leisure makes its appeal to most where dreams of wealth fail.

Rev. Sam Maitland Entertains Friends At Dinner In Greenwood Methodist Church

DR. HAMMAKER GUEST SPEAKER

Another year has passed in the life of Rev. Sam Maitland, pastor of the Greenwood Methodist church at Energy, on the Ellwood Road, but he dates his birthday from the time of his spiritual awakening instead of his natural birth and this event marked the twenty ninth anniversary of that memorable day. At noon about one hundred friends and parishioners of Mr. Maitland sat down to a most sumptuous chicken dinner in the dining room of the church, and about the festal board were gathered many ministers of the Gospel, representing almost as many denominations, and their wives, as well as many laymen. The women of the church served an excellent dinner.

Large birthday cakes centered the long tables and each wished the genial host congratulations as the cakes were passed. The group sang the Doxology before sitting down. Dr. Charles B. Wingerd invoked the Divine blessing.

Program

When the tables had been relieved of their load of good things, the group returned to the church auditorium, where Dr. E. A. Crooks, pastor of the Reformed Presbyterian church, acted as chairman, and after reading the 90th Psalm and commenting upon the purpose of the event for which the group was assembled Dr. S. L. Maxwell, pastor of the Epworth Methodist church led in the singing of a number of hymns and Dr. C. G. Farr, district superintendent of the Methodist church, led in prayer.

The various visiting ministers then brought their greetings and felicitations to Mr. Maitland on this happy occasion and each was introduced with some witty remarks from Dr. Crooks.

Dr. C. B. Wingerd brought greetings from the Central Presbyterian church; Rev. J. Finkbeiner from the Emanuel Evangelical; Ensign and Mrs. V. Thomsen from the Salvation Army; Rev. Rohrbach from Rich Hill Presbyterian church; Dr. G. S. Bennett from the First Christian church.

Rev. S. L. Cobb, from the Harmony Baptist church; Rev. Oscar Wood from Bethany Lutheran; Rev. C. G. Johnston, Center United Presbyterian; Dr. W. A. Womer, as a layman; Rev. V. L. Bloomquist, Savannah Methodist; Rev. George B. Nolder, Wesley Methodist; Rev. W. H. Downing, Mahoning Methodist; Rev. W. C. Currell, Maitland Memorial; Rev. B. B. Withers, Methodist minister who served as the "filling" of the sandwich formed by Rev. Maitland's one year away from Greenwood church and Dr. S. L. Maxwell of the Epworth Methodist church.

Samuel Burrows of Ellwood City, accompanied by his wife, sang a number of pleasing solos throughout the afternoon.

Guest Speaker

Dr. C. G. Farr then introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Dr. W. E. Hammaker, one of the outstanding figures in Methodism, and pastor of the Trinity Methodist church of Youngstown, Ohio, where he has served for the past sixteen years. Dr. Hammaker is also chairman of the relief committee of that city, and his text for the address was most appropriate to the present day and also to the occasion being celebrated.

Dr. Hammaker chose "Thou Shalt Not Tempt the Lord Thy God for Man Shall Not Live By Bread Alone." He told of the physical hunger which must be satisfied, but he said there was another hunger that was of more importance, the spiritual hunger, and it was in celebration of an event of the satisfaction of this hunger that the group had gathered.

He further stated that the church of today is in danger of missing the unseen values of life in the material factors. He concluded by saying that the rituals, the ceremonies and the structure of a church building were not conducive to deep spiritual life; there is something deeper than the skin of the organization called the church.

Concluding Dr. Hammaker's address Rev. Samuel Maitland most graciously responded to all the kind wishes and felicitations of the group.

Pleas Are Entered, Sentences Passed

Short Session Of Court Held This Morning By Judges Hildebrand And Chambers

Judges R. L. Hildebrand and James A. Chambers held a short session of court this morning, at which several pleas were taken and sentences were passed.

Frank Bush, colored, and Augustine Pandzi, entered pleas to a charge of the larceny of some automobile tires. Inquiry developed that Pandzi had gone down to the vicinity of Mahoning avenue, where he picked up Bush in his automobile. They came uptown. Bush remained in the car while Pandzi stole several automobile spare tires.

Bush claimed that he had never been in any trouble before and a plea of leniency was made in his behalf by his attorney. Pandzi admitted that he had been in trouble before in 1927, when some goods stolen from a hardware store had been found in his room. He claimed that a couple of other fellows had done the stealing and he had permitted them to store the goods in his room until they could dispose of them. He was paroled on this charge. Court records showed that he had broken his parole.

Chief of Police C. C. Horner made a statement to the court regarding the case, saying that the reputation of Pandzi was known to the police and it was owing to this fact that he had been apprehended. Most of the tires that had been stolen had been identified and returned to the owners. So far as the police knew, Bush had never been in any trouble before.

Pandzi, who is about 20 years of age, was sentenced to Huntingdon reformatory. Bush was paroled for three years upon payment of costs.

Frank Ussell, charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, stated that he had been asked to drive a car to Sharon. He and a friend who had accompanied him, had some beer, and when in the vicinity of New Bedford he had been arrested by Constable Robert McClenahan. He said that he had never been in any trouble before, that he regretted his action and asked for the leniency of the court. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and costs and two months to jail to date from January 10th. Petition for parole will be entertained at the end of 30 days upon the payment of fine and costs.

Harry Layton, who was convicted of sodomy at the recent term of court, was sentenced to serve from two to six years in the western penitentiary.

Mid-January Themes For Church Services Sunday

Will Start An Evangelistic Campaign Soon

Central Christian Church Will Be Scene Of Special Religious Effort

CHARLES WARREN JOHNSTONE

Under the capable leadership of Charles Warren Johnstone, young minister-evangelist, who came to New Castle November 13, 1931, from the West Pike's Peak Christian church, Colorado Springs, Colorado, the Central Christian church, Long and Pennsylvania avenues, will conduct a month's evangelistic campaign, beginning January 24th and ending February 21st.

Home forces will be used exclusively during the campaign, with Rev. Johnstone preaching; David Lewis, well-known South Side musician, directing a chorus of 30 voices, and local singers contributing musical specialties.

All plans have been carefully worked out, and the congregation, which has witnessed a steady growth of interest and attendance in the past few weeks, is anticipating one of the most helpful meetings in its history.

The story of Charles Warren "Happy" Johnstone's life is interesting and colorful. Passing from the atmosphere of the Old South, in which he was born and reared, to that of the theatrical profession early in boyhood, he spent many years in circus and stage work. During this time he built up an enviable reputation as a bare-back rider, actor and director; wrote several books, plays and short stories, and traveled extensively, witnessing several revolutions and coming in contact with men of every race, color and creed.

At various times during his professional career he was associated with many of the most outstanding stage and circus organizations ever on tour.

A soldier during the great World War, Rev. Johnstone is a member of the American Legion and the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, and has served both organizations as adjutant, chaplain and patriotic speaker, in which work he won wide recognition in the Southwest and West. During his ministry in Oklahoma he served as a non-commissioned officer with the 45th Military Police Company, 45th National Guard Division. His lecture, "Mars or Christ?" has been delivered many times under various auspices, and is acclaimed as one of the most vivid and gripping appeals for world peace ever presented.

In 1921 Rev. Johnstone, at that time a confirmed atheist, returned to his boyhood home for a short visit. Coming under the influence of the local Christian minister, he was converted and began preaching immediately. He was educated in church and state schools of Tennessee, during which time he served as student minister and evangelist with nearby mountain congregations.

He holds two degrees and is now working upon another with the Pike's Peak Bible Seminary, of which institution he was a faculty member during his pastorate in Colorado Springs.

Since entering the full time ministry in 1925 Rev. Johnstone has held successful pastorates in Indiana, Oklahoma and Colorado. His work has been that of reviving weak congregations, raising debts and erecting church buildings. In each pastorate he took a prominent place in the civic work of the community and was chairman of the spectacular Easter sunrise prayer service held annually in the Garden of the Gods, near Colorado Springs, a service which drew 15,000 people last Easter. The coming evangelistic campaign will be the 40th he has conducted since his conversion.

Rev. Johnstone brings to the ministry of the local church the knowledge of life and human nature of a man twice his age. Years of travel brought him in daily contact with the realities of life and prepared him for a ministry of sympathy and understanding. Young in years, old in knowledge and a forceful and eloquent speaker, "Happy" Johnstone preaches the gospel with all the color and power that varied experiences, deep conviction and enthusiastic delivery can give it.

LOOKING BACK IN NEW CASTLE

Recalling the fact that I. Lamont Hughes, present president of the Carnegie Steel company, may be the next president of the United States Steel corporation and that as a boy he attended school here and received the other training and inspiration that may be acquired in this community, reminds us that there have been numerous former boys of this city who have made good, usually, it must be admitted, in fields other than New Castle. These individuals who are most too numerous to mention at any one time, have made good in practically every line of human endeavor. In their professions, businesses, in the world of sports, in the navy, in the army, in fact whatever they set about to do in communities in which they make their homes in later life. This should prove of much inspirational value to every boy and the girls too—of this community, not so much because it may indicate that this city is so much better than any other but because it does show that, if they, like the successful individuals to whom this refers, make the most of the opportunities afforded them here, that they, too, may go out and become outstanding successful individuals wherever they go.

Monday, Jan. 16, 1932. The Castleton 12:15 to 1:30 p. m.

Those Who Expended Fortunes In Pittsburgh Are Praised By Thomas A. Dunn

Mellon Brothers Completing $20,000,000 Building Program Started Few Years Ago

(International News Service) PITTSBURGH, Jan. 16.—Thirteen pioneer families, who reaped and expended their fortunes in the Pittsburgh district, today were credited with promoting the industrial leadership of the city during the past 30 years, by Thomas A. Dunn, president of the Chamber of Commerce. Dunn lauded the vision of two Mellon brothers, Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, and Richard K. Mellon, banker and industrial leader, for spreading Pittsburgh's fame to all parts of the world.

"While many other men who made great fortunes here, left to spend them elsewhere, the Mellons have been too loyally devoted to Pittsburgh to follow their example," Dunn declared.

"They have been jealous and zealous of Pittsburgh, jealous for the continuance of its industrial prestige, zealous for the translation of its wealth into higher and finer educational and cultural institutions."

"In looking forward to a new year, I believe there is no better time to review the accomplishments of the men of faith and vision who built the great industrial metropolis: the Schoenbergers, the Zugs, the Klossmans, the Carnegies, B. F. Jones, Sr., George M., and Henry A. Laughlin, George Westinghouse, H. J. Heinz, H. C. Frick, James Callery, the Park brothers, Henry Oliver, and the Mellons."

Dunn pointed out that the Mellon interests were completing their $20,000,000 building program inaugurated several years ago here.

Psychologists, Not Mere Cops, Will Detect Crime

Scientist Predicts More Science In Future Police Detection Methods

By JOHN J. VINCENT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 16—College-trained psychologists rather than the garden variety of policemen will be the nemesis of criminals in the not distant future, according to H. R. Mayberry, psychology instructor at the University of Pittsburgh.

Modern science, Mayberry told the social science "round table" of the Pittsburgh Faculty Club, has developed three methods for detection of the liar—and modern criminologists will avail themselves of scientific methods for breaking down false alibis of criminals.

"All three methods" said Mayberry "promise success as used by a trained psychologist as a basis for expert testimony or as a substitute for 'third degree' methods used in obtaining confessions from criminals."

"The oldest method is the association-reaction method. In this, the subject reacts to a long series of stimulus words by stating as quickly as possible the first word or idea which enters his mind when the word is pronounced. He may indicate guilt by delaying his reaction time due to the emotion caused, or he may keep his reaction constant, but show by the quality of the association reaction that he knows more about a crime than an innocent person should know."

"One prominent investigator has decided there are two kinds of liars, the occasional or unsuccessful liar who increases his reaction time to the crucial words and the chronic or successful liar, who keeps his reaction time fairly constant."

"The other methods are known as the inspiration-expiration ratio in breathing and the changes in systolic blood pressure," Mayberry told the club.

"The theory involved in these latter methods is that the subject will show significant changes in breathing or in blood pressure when he makes a false answer to a yes-no type question. This is believed to be due to the emotion caused by knowledge on the part of the subject that he is lying."

The first two methods, Mayberry said, tried in laboratories, have proved accurate three out of four times. The third method averaged eight out of ten times, while one investigator claimed 95 per cent accuracy for the blood pressure test.

White's Opinion Given Council

Points Out Difference Between Present And Proposed Light Contract

COUNCIL WILL CONSIDER MATTER

City Solicitor Robert White has presented to members of council an opinion relating to the proposed new street lighting contract between the city and Pennsylvania Power company, which if adopted would not expire until January 1, 1937. The present agreement expires January 1, 1935.

White points out where the present and proposed contract differs. He says there are three "whereas clauses", the first and second of which are mere tautology. The third, he opines recites an ordinance which is anticipated to provide for a new contract with the company.

The schedule of rates is changed by reducing the price of all lights $5.00 a year, except for 1,000 c. p. lamps which are reduced $10.00 per year.

There is added a new type of light, 250 c. p. lights, at $35.00 a year which he maintains is only $2.50 reduction per year on the present rate for 250 c. p. lamps.

He claims in the opinion that the seventh clause of the old contract is left out, which is the one reserving the city's right to compel the company to put its lines in conduits.

The opinion, now being studied by councilmen, follows:

White's Opinion
January 12, 1932.
"The Hon. Mayor and Council of the City of New Castle, New Castle, Penn.
Gentlemen:

"There has been referred to me for approval a proposed contract between the Penn. Power Co., and the City of New Castle for electric lighting, etc. This proposed agreement is dated January 31, 1932, and is for a term of five years, from the first day of January, 1932, to the first day of January, 1937.

"The present contract of the Electric Co., with the City is for a term of five years, from the first day of January, 1932, to the first day of January, 1937. The new contract differs from the old contract only in the following particulars:

"1. There are included in the new contract three "whereas" clauses. The first and second of these are mere tautology. The third "whereas" clause recites an ordinance which is anticipated to provide for a new contract with the Electric Co.

"2. The new contract extends the old contract for additional period of two years, ending on the first day of January, 1937, instead of the first day of January, 1935.

"3. The schedule of rates is changed by reducing the price of all lamps

$5.00 per year, except for 1,000 c. p. lamps which are reduced $10.00 per year.

$2.50 Reduction
"4. There is added a new type of light, 250 c. p. lamps, at $35.00 per year, which is a reduction of only $2.50 per year on the present rate for 250 c. p.

"5. The seventh clause of the old contract is left out, which is the one reserving the City's right to compel the company to put its lines in conduits.

The light bill of the City of New Castle for the past three months under the old contract has been as follows:

995-250 c. p. overhead at $37.50—
$37.50
100-250 c. p. pendant at $58.00—
$58.00

31-300 c. p. ornamental at $70.00—
$21.00

131-600 c. p. ornamental post at $75.00—
$9.75

100-1000 c. p. ornamental at $85.00—
$8.50

The light bill for the same three months under the proposed rate would be as follows:

995-250 c. p. overhead at $32.50—
$32.50

356-300 c. p. pendant at $60.00—
$21.00

31-300 c. p. ornamental at $65.00—
$21.00

131-600 c. p. ornamental post at $70.00—
$9.75

100-1000 c. p. ornamental at $85.00—
$8.50

"This schedule would effect a reduction of $718.75 per month, or $8,625.12 per year. I believe that it was thought to save about $10,000.00 on the lighting this year, so that the balance of the $10,000.00, to wit: $1,374.88, is probably intended to be saved on the lighting in the City Building and other property of the City.

Not Satisfactory
"It happens that the City of Youngstown has a rate on all of the same kind of lights that we have, and I am advised by the Director of Law in the City of Youngstown that they are not satisfied with that rate and intend to try to have it reduced. However, under the rate that they have, if the same was applied to the City of New Castle, would have given us a bill for each of the last three months as follows:

995-250 c. p. overhead at $27.00—
$27.00

356-300 c. p. pendant at $60.00—
$21.00

31-300 c. p. ornamental at $65.00—
$21.00

131-600 c. p. ornamental post at $70.00—
$9.75

100-1000 c. p. ornamental at $85.00—
$8.50

"This schedule would effect a saving of $855.79 a month less than that now proposed by the Electric Co., in the new contract which it has proffered to you. That would mean that for the year the Youngstown rate would be $11,229.48 less than is now offered to the City of New Castle.

"Some time ago I recommended to the members of Council that the City of New Castle should make application to the Public Service Commission for an adjustment of rates. Objection was raised to this procedure that the City had a contract which had yet three years to run. I advised Council then that the contract was ineffective as to rates, i. e., that rates are not a subject of contract and can be changed at any time by the Public Service Commission. All of the members of Council felt, however, that it was not good sportsmanship for the City, having made a contract, to try to break it and for that reason, as I understand, the Council was willing to compromise this question with the Electric Co.

Suggests Remedy
"I have very often in the last two and one-half years expressed it as my opinion that the present contract with the Electric Co. was inequitable and I do not believe that there is any consideration, legal or moral, that ought to deter the City in trying to have the wrong remedied. However, there are a great many people who will not agree with me and think that even though the City did rely upon the schedule which the Electric Co. gave it in making its contract, the contract was made and that the City ought to go through with it.

"Mr. Rounds has, therefore, proposed a new contract, which, if extended only over the three years yet to run on the old contract, ought to save the City $8,625.12 for three years, or a total of $25,875.36. Of course, the City of Youngstown, during the same three years will get the same amount of light for further saving of $33,888.44, so that in that three years, because of our contract, we will be paying to the Electric company at least $33,888.44 more than we ought to pay for it. If, therefore, a new contract is entered into for two more years that is effective to the list of January 1, 1937, at a rate that is $11,229.48 more than the Youngstown is paying them in the two extra years the City will pay the Electric Co. a further sum of $22,458.96 more than it ought to pay, and the Electric Co. will make up in the extra two years everything that it concedes under its present contract for the next three years, except about $3,000.00.

Concerted Action
"I would, therefore, say to you that with the exceptions hereinabove noted at the first of this opinion the form of the contract now proposed is identical with that which we now enjoy, or which, rather, I should say the Electric Co. now enjoys and we endure. My own personal opinion is that the present contract is perfidious and that it ought to be set aside. If the City would undertake to have it set aside, I would find itself not alone because I now know of at least 25 municipalities who propose to take the same kind of action, and in the next two years there is going to be a very popular movement toward Harrisburg and the Public Service Commission in this kind of undertaking. The Public Service Companies can not hope to maintain peak prices when wages and all other commodities are being violently reduced.

"The form of the proposed contract, however, I must say to you is perfectly legal and regular to accomplish what the Electric Co. proposes to accomplish.

Respectfully submitted,
Robert M. White,
City Solicitor.

The Parent Problem

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Football's Death Toll Deplored, Beneficial Effects Of Game Cited

Dr. Myers Urges Parents To Use Their Influence With Athletic Officials To Modify Rules Of Sport

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.
Head Division Parental Education,
Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

When we parents read the toll of death which football claimed in the last season we do not all feel wholly comfortable. Nearly 50 of our country's finest boys were offered up. Their lives were given for the game of football.

Now 50 seems like a large number, and the tragedy must have been a most terrible one for the parents of each victim.

But let us wait a minute before letting ourselves grow panicky—then we won't. In comparison with the thousands who played on 'varsity' teams and the thousands more who engaged in scrimmage, and the added thousands of young lads who, on sandlots and other vacant spaces, were engaged in the out-of-door activity with the pigskin ball, the number lost is small. Think also of the several million other boys and girls, men and women, who were out of doors breathing the good fresh air, on account of football.

Within a city of two million people more than 50 healthy young lads are lost during a year in preventable street accidents, while engaged in activities which hardly contributed much to the welfare of others. During a football season more than 80 fine, healthy young men commit robberies and holdups and are responsible, perhaps, for the murder of an equal number of good, healthy, promising citizens, even during this short while.

These 50 are a small group compared to the army of young men and women slain by tuberculois. We little realize how much the sport of football does to prevent tuberculosis by attracting thousands upon thousands to the open air, by inspiring the growing children to want to be strong and healthy. Can you imagine any football fan boasting of a cold or headache while the game is on? Football has helped make physical hardihood fashionable.

Oh, yes, we deplore the commercialism of the game and numerous practices in regard to it which morally are questionable. But let us also admit the big contribution to health and sportsmanship and character by this game.

Nevertheless, there ought to be a way to make the game less hazardous. If parents from all over our country will express themselves, those athletic officials responsible for the rules of the game will set out to modify the rules so that far fewer lives will in the future be sacrificed in the otherwise wholesome and nationally serviceable sport.

In spite of the hazards of football, I doubt whether parents should forbid our boys next fall to play football. Such denials may be too expensive to the lad's personality. Some would rather suffer physical injury than to bear the cancerous wounds of personality. I fancy some boys would rather face death than face what seems to them unbearable humiliations. But we surely should like to see the game become less perilous.

LETTERS TO THE NEWS

Letters Intended For This Column Must Be Signed With Name And Address Of Writer

SCOTT TOWNSHIP COMPLAINTS
Editor New Castle News,
New Castle, Pa.

Dear Sir:
Taxpayers out here in Scott township have been scanning your paper for the report of our township auditors. Other townships have reported but not Scott.

One taxpayer suggested that perhaps the report had been "poisoned" another said "the method of publishing had passed out with the oatmeal, but after making inquiries, we found one copy of the report tucked up in a dark corner of a store. We wanted to read this report, but unless one were constructed along the lines of the griffin, one could not read it after it had been placed in that corner. We found the first part of this report, then the shorter pair of legs to stand on while reading central part, and then the last could only be read by sitting on the floor. (Am not at all sure the griffin can sit.)

Mr. Editor it seems to the taxpayers out here "in this neck of the woods" that we should sit at home in comfort and read this report as printed in The New Castle News.

We venture to say not a score of voters in the township know where this report can be found.

The writer would like to make another request through your paper, that is that the official of the highway department who supervised the making of the approach to our township road at Rock Springs, take a look and note the change since he left it as finished. It is now graveled. (We have a new supervisor.) It did not seem to make any difference to the highway department that men wasted hours of time in crossing this approach. However, we now have an approach which lets us out upon the highway without endangering our own lives or the lives of others.

Before we quit, would like to ask you Mr. Editor how long does it take a candidate (who is more interested in lowering taxes than in anything else) to forget all about lowering taxes after he is elected to office?

We recall something David said "I said in my haste all men are liars." We think if David were living today he would not need to apologize for that statement and what makes us feel like "2 for 5" is, we voted for some of that!

Thank you,
MRS. S. W. HARRIAN,
New Castle, Pa.

Necessity Of Humidity In Ventilation

Three Factors Needed In Proper Air Conditioning

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
The three factors necessary for successful ventilation are that the air should be moving, and it should be continued as to temperature and humidity.

Most of us are accustomed to think of ventilation only in terms of temperature and adequate air space. The question of the comfort of a room cannot be decided on the basis of temperature alone. The amount of humidity determines whether a given temperature is comfortable or not.

The ideal temperature for comfort health and efficiency, is about 68 to 70 degrees Fahrenheit. Provided the air is not too dry. When the humidity of the air is too low this temperature will feel chilly. The principal reason our offices and homes are over-heated in the winter is because the humidity of the air is too low. One will feel cold and uncomfortable unless the temperature is close to 80 degrees Fahrenheit.

When theatres first began to use cooled air in the summer time they usually maintained a temperature of about 70. But they also reduced the humidity of the air so much that with very dry air this temperature was too low for the comfort of the patrons. Now they reduce the humidity to a proper level and maintain a temperature of about 75.

It is curious that sanitary engineers of former times gave no consideration to humidifying the air. The heating systems that most of us have in our homes and places of business are constructed with no thought whatever of making the air moist or dry. The prevalent idea 25 years ago was that stale air was produced by a number of people breathing carbon-dioxide into a room. Now we know that expired air does not vitiate the atmosphere to any extent.

To show the difficulties of properly humidifying a home with ordinary heating apparatus the studies of E. L. Lyon are interesting. He found that to secure 50 per cent relative humidity in his residence in the winter required the vaporization of half a gallon of water per hour per 7,000 cubic feet. In most houses the change of air in the room due to leakage through windows and doors causes the humidity to be reduced very rapidly. It requires 20 to 25 gallons of water to be evaporated every 24 hours in average homes to produce even a fairly good result.

Small dishes of water are entirely inadequate. Lyon uses 12 trays of 30 inches long, set one over the other, on a radiator. Of course, such a procedure is entirely impractical. The reason most of us do not follow Mr. Lyon's example is not pressed in that grand old motto of brave men, and heroes: My wife won't let me.

In summer in our climate we should do just the opposite—remove moisture from a too humid atmosphere.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS
D. B.: "I have been affected for two years with rheumatism. Recently a doctor found my heart sick with rheumatic endocarditis. I don't feel any trouble in my heart. I am curious to know why I do not feel any consequence of such sickness. Answer: Rheumatic heart disease does not produce any symptoms so long as the heart is in a condition of compensation. The heart must complete its task for the disease for many years. I have known several patients over 70 with this trouble. The best advice I can give you is to remain under the care of your physician and allow him to prescribe treatment when he thinks it is necessary."

COMPARES HEALTH IN PHILADELPHIA WITH BIRMINGHAM

HARRISBURG, Jan. 16.—A comparative study of the vital statistics of Philadelphia and Birmingham, England, recently completed by the bureau of vital statistics of the State Department of Health, reveals many interesting comparisons in the health conditions of these two great centers of population, officials said today. Philadelphia has nearly twice the population of Birmingham.

A striking difference in the diphtheria death rate is first noted. Last year Philadelphia lost only two per hundred thousand population from that malady, while Birmingham's total deaths reached nine, or over four times as many. Taking the entire State of Pennsylvania for comparison, the rate of the English city was about double that of our Commonwealth.

Outdoor Life For Girls, Scout Director Advises

The new vigor and vitamin-giving devices have done wonders to bring health into the home, but nothing can ever take the place of a day spent in the fresh air and sunshine. This is the opinion of Miss Jeanne Christy, a member of the national camp advisory staff of the Girl Scouts, who has been in New Castle this week. "I am inclined to think that there never was a time when it was more important to get our girls out of doors," said Miss Christy.

Bulletin Gives All Details For Forest Plantings

HARRISBURG, Jan. 16.—A new illustrated circular, "Forest Trees to Plant in Pennsylvania," has been issued by the Department of Forests and Waters, and, according to Lewis E. Staley, Secretary, is now available for public distribution.

Descriptions are given to the important timber trees raised in the State Forest tree nurseries, together with the rates at which they grow. Approved planting methods, the spacing distance to be followed, and the kinds of soil to which they are adapted are furnished for the various kinds of trees.

The important animals, insects and diseases affecting tree plantations are briefly described so that they may be identified easily. Recommendations are furnished for the control of many diverse agents liable to damage forest plantations, ranging all the way from deer and cattle to birds, mice and rabbits, down to aphids, scale insects, and spruce bugs.

MEASURE GIVEN TO COUNCIL FRIDAY

The ordinances were sent to committee. Council agreed upon adoption of such ordinances when the budget for 1932 was compiled in December.

One ordinance calls for a reduction of 10 per cent in the wages of the city clerk, solicitor and engineer. Previous to the cut, council had cut $600 from the salaries of the engineer and the solicitor, effective next May.

Commission To Uphold Rates

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The Interstate Commerce Commission will announce a decision within the next few days upholding the present differential of 35 cents per ton on lake cargo coal shipments, it was predicted Friday.

The question involved is whether the rates paid by Ohio and Pennsylvania bituminous coal operators on one hand, and by Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee operators on the other, are so related as to unduly prejudice the former and unduly prejudice the latter.

The present differential of 35 cents a ton in these rates as between the respective fields represents a compromise rate agreed to by the railroads serving the mines involved.

Eastern operators maintain that despite their geographical position the present differential is not high enough to enable them to compete with Southern fields on lake cargo business.

Commission To Uphold Rates

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The Interstate Commerce Commission will announce a decision within the next few days upholding the present differential of 35 cents per ton on lake cargo coal shipments, it was predicted Friday.

The question involved is whether the rates paid by Ohio and Pennsylvania bituminous coal operators on one hand, and by Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee operators on the other, are so related as to unduly prejudice the former and unduly prejudice the latter.

The present differential of 35 cents a ton in these rates as between the respective fields represents a compromise rate agreed to by the railroads serving the mines involved.

Eastern operators maintain that despite their geographical position the present differential is not high enough to enable them to compete with Southern fields on lake cargo business.

Vanishing Americans
30.—The Round-Up Of The Cherokees

AS TIME WENT ON, INCREASING PRESSURE WAS BROUGHT TO BEAR UPON THE CHEROKEES AND MANY OF THE INDIANS CAME TO REALIZE THAT THEIR CAUSE WAS HOPELESS. ELIAS BOUDINOT, CHEROKEE EDITOR, TRIED TO PERSUADE THE GENERAL COUNCIL TO SUBMIT VOLUNTARILY TO REMOVAL.

IN 1835 BOUDINOT AND 300 PROMINENT CHEROKEES MADE A TREATY WITH THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT, SIGNING AWAY THE TRIBAL LANDS AND AGREEING TO REMOVAL TO A WESTERN RESERVATION.

IN VAIN THE MAJORITY OF THE CHEROKEES PROTESTED THAT THE SIGNERS REPRESENTED ONLY A SMALL PORTION OF THEIR NATION. IN 1838 UNITED STATES TROOPS MARCHED INTO NORTHWESTERN GEORGIA AND EVICTED THE CHEROKEES FROM THEIR CABINS.

ALL BUT A HANDFUL OF INDIANS, WHO FLED INTO THE HILLS, WERE ROUNDED UP BY THE SOLDIERS AND HERDED INTO HASTILY ERRECTED STOCKADES AND KEPT UNDER GUARD WHILE ARRANGEMENTS FOR MOVING THEM BEYOND THE MISSISSIPPI WERE MADE.

NEW YORK STOCKS

Small Turnover In Stock Market Today

By W. S. COUSINS
International News Service Financial Editor

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—All sections of the market felt the weight of profit taking and professional selling in the dull week-end market and prices were generally lower. Wall Street detected renewed selling by the interest which have been on the short side of the market over the last two years, and the speculative industrial stocks were freely sold at times.

Week-end business promises improved an uptick in steel production, which was substantiated by reports of a 3 per cent increase in steel mills output at Youngstown. Buying of automobiles at the big show was reported well above expectations, which should soon be reflected in an increasing output for the motor car manufacturers.

Only 500,000 shares passed through the market in the first ninety minutes of the small turnover even for a dull week-end. Atchison, leading the reaction in the rails, sold off about 3 points at 88½. United States Steel broke fractionally under 44 for a loss of 1½. Auburn Auto dropped off 3 points to 144½, but recovered in the closing period. General Motors lost a point, American Can 1½. Consolidated Gas a point and the Standard Oil sold fractionally lower.

On the whole, railroad stocks gave a good account of themselves, while rail bonds fell off 1 to 3 points, principally on profit taking.

Active industrial and railroad shares had the benefit of short covering as the final period approached. But as a rule the market closed lower.

United States Steel finished the short session at 44½, down 1½, and American Tel. and Tel. was down ½ at 121½. General Motors lost ½ at 23½. American Can was down ½ at 83½. Eastman Kodak down ½ at 85½. Dupont down a point at 55½ and Auburn Auto down 2 at 145½. Westinghouse lost ½ at 29½.

The rails were sluggish in the final period. New Haven spurted from below 28 to close at 29, down ½. New York Central was down a point at 35; Atchison down 1½ at 88½; Union Pacific down 2 at 81½; Southern Pacific down 1½ at 55.

Hoover Forgets About Candidacy

Friends Of President Are Showing Candidacy—Hoover Solving Nation's Problems

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—President Hoover is taking no personal part in the shaping of his candidacy for 1932, it was stated at the White House today when Postmaster General Walter F. Brown's announcement that Mr. Hoover's name would be entered in a number of state primaries.

The following statement was made public at the White House: "The president is giving his undivided thought and attention to the problems confronting the country and to the relief program before congress. He just refuses to see anyone on personal politics or to discuss personal politics."

On the heels of the announcement James Francis Burke, general counsel for the Republican national committee, arrived in Washington Friday and repaired to the White House for conference.

Burke said he was already in touch with state leaders by mail and telegraph concerning the entering of Mr. Hoover's name in various state primaries.

United States Plans To Increase Strength Of Nicaraguan Forces

By ROBERT C. MONTE
International News Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1932, By International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The United States is planning soon to increase the strength of American armed forces in Nicaragua.

It is expected that a force of from 300 to 500 marines or blue-jackets will be sent to augment the approximately 1,000 marines there. Their specific purpose will be to assure a peaceful, orderly general election, scheduled for next fall.

After the election and the induction of the newly elected government into office, these special troops will be withdrawn.

Before June
The date for the dispatch of the additional troops has not been decided by the administration, but it is generally believed they will be in Nicaragua before June 1.

Necessity for additional American forces in the country during the election campaign became apparent to officials of the U. S. Navy yesterday. Numerous clashes have occurred between patrols of the Nicaraguan "Guardia" and native insurgents recently.

An intensive recruiting campaign has been carried on to build up the "Guardia" to strength sufficient to maintain order in the country, but even with these added recruits navy officials feel their numbers are too few and their period of training too brief to assure a tranquil election unaided.

Looks as though we talked too much about the rainy weather. Too much talk has ruined a lot of things and now it appears as though talk has scared off the nice weather and look at it today.

J. Crawford White who has seen a lot of winters come and go dropped a couple of lines about some of the winters back when your grandmother was going to spelling bees. Here's the letter.

Dear Mr. Richards:
You have received, I think, discussed a very timely subject, the temperature of this winter's weather. I imagine I hear Amos and Andy say "This is just the kind of winter weather we have down in Georgia."

When Mrs. George Greer and I were children, one of our parents told us of a winter "way back" in which it was so dry in January that the dust flew from the roads, (and they didn't look for dust in the good old days) but, I couldn't say as to the temperature.

In 1878 and 79 we had quite a mild winter.

We looked for a very cold winter for 1879 and 80 but, to our great surprise that autumn and winter up to about the first of February was as duplicate of this winter so far and until the wheat advanced so in size as to worry the farmers, however we were blessed with the most beautiful wheat crop in 1880 within my recollection.

The knockout of Tommy Loughran last night by Steve Karnas may be just another fight to you, but it has a personal interest for a lad up in Westminster College. Jinx Hamas, one of the basketball players up there is a brother of Steve's and does he root for the brother. And last night's fight means that Steve will now be up among the important sugar.

That idea of putting some men to work on Cascade street is meeting with some favor here and there and round about. Now if Stan Treiser joins the army of approbation, the residents of Croton will get a real street through to their back doors.

Time to get your poodle tag if you haven't done so. Bill Pitts, William to you, the county treasurer, now has the tags he says and already a pair of youngsters have the record for youth in getting a tag.

A pair of them, neither more than seven years of age, came into the office the other afternoon with a dog of indefinite breed. The poodle hadn't had a bath for some time, and the youngsters' record wasn't so good either, but they wanted a tag for their dog.

Grabbing the pup amidstships they proceeded to set him up on the treasurer's window ledge and said, "we wanted to be sure we answered the questions right so we brought the dog along." Gravely, the county treasurer filled out the blanks, examined the dog fore and after for identifying marks and handed the cash customers the tag for the dog.
